

TAFT IS PLANNING TOAD ROOSEVELT

Will Further His Efforts to Take Control of New York Organization.

REST FOR PRESIDENT

Secretary Gives Orders That He Must Not Be Disturbed for Ten Days.

Beverly, Mass., July 2.—President Taft is being besieged by Republican leaders, big and little, throughout the country who desire appointments that they may talk with him about the meeting with Colonel Roosevelt and get a line on how the political cat is going to jump. The watchword for these leaders for the present is "patience." Secretary Norton desires it to be known that he has ordered the President to take a complete rest for ten days, beginning July 5. During that time the President is to play golf, motor about the North Shore and otherwise devote himself to his family and the rest cure. No one will be permitted to see him during that period, and to that end application Secretary Norton is himself going away, leaving strict orders with Assistant Secretary Forster that for ten days the President must not be disturbed.

It is perhaps interesting to note that Secretary Norton goes to St. James, L. I., for his vacation. St. James is within easy striking distance of Oyster Bay. Norton, however, declares that there is no significance in that.

Will Help Roosevelt.
In the meantime it may be depended upon as a certainty that the President will take some steps to assist with all the power of his administration in planning to take the office of the organization which set his orders at naught at Albany the other day. Whatever the President does, however, will be done quietly.

Secretary Norton made the fact known today that the President will not take any part in any State campaign this fall, unless it be in Ohio, where he feels that by reason of his citizenship in the State he is entitled to participate in its political affairs. It is not unlikely that the President may make a few speeches throughout Ohio in October. In other places visited any speeches delivered with the wholly of a non-partisan character.

Meanwhile, the talk between Taft and Roosevelt here on Thursday will be regarded as personal and confidential. If the Ballinger-Pinchot affair was touched on at all, it can be said that the President remained firm in his position that the dismissal of Pinchot was the only recourse left to him after the manner in which his orders were flouted by the former chief forester. If Colonel Roosevelt is not left in his mind either about the President's support of Ballinger.

Ballinger to Retire.
That, however, is a matter of course. As to the future, there are reasons for believing that matters are shaping up in such a way that the Ballinger shadow may not much longer rise up between Taft and Roosevelt. Ballinger has aged greatly since he entered the Cabinet sixteen months ago. He looks tired and worn, his hair has whitened and the strain which he has been undergoing may shortly force him to retire to private life for the benefit of his health.

The expense of the Ballinger-Pinchot affair to the secretary alone has already been great, $20,000 having been spent by him in defending himself, or practically his entire salary for four years in the Senate. That any portion of this can be returned by appropriation, even if he is vindicated, is out of the question, and the Secretary of the Interior is by no means a man of wealth; furthermore, while the President undoubtedly feels that Secretary Ballinger has been greatly maligned, and has cheerfully borne his part of the burden of the Ballinger affair, and is loyal to his secretary still, there are reasons for believing that if Ballinger should express a desire to leave the Cabinet the President would offer no serious objections.

Secretary Ballinger is one of the Cabinet officers slated for an early visit to the summer capital. His resignation may not come then, but it will be regarded as strange in well informed quarters if his resignation is not in the President's hands before the reconvening of Congress or even before the congressional campaign waxes warm.

Savages of Lifetime Stolen.
Bristol, Tenn., July 2.—After hiding $1,000 in 20 gold pieces for fifty years at different spots on his premises, John Hopper, of Washington county, Va., two weeks ago secreted the yellow coin under the kitchen of his home. When he went to get the money yesterday to look at and count it, it was missing. There is no clue to the thief.

RETIRED OFFICER IN NEW POSITION

General Marshall Is Placed in Recently Created Berth at $7,500 a Year.

Washington, D. C., July 2.—Brigadier-General William L. Marshall, who recently retired as chief of engineers of the army, to-day was appointed consulting engineer to the Secretary of the Interior in the reclamation service, a position created by Secretary of the Interior Ballinger to assist him in solving the engineering problems involved in completing the reclamation projects now under way.

While the appointment coincides with the policy of the administration in taking any possible advantage of the technical training and experience of the army engineers in the mammoth task of reclaiming the arid and semi-arid regions of the country, it was said at the Interior Department that the new officer will not supplant F. H. Newell, director of the reclamation service, whose fate has been the subject of much speculation ever since the lines were sharply drawn between the Garfield and Ballinger administrations of the department.

It was explicitly stated that General Marshall's appointment did not indicate any change in the personnel of the field forces of the reclamation service inasmuch as he would have no supervisory or administrative duties in connection with the service, nor the designing of construction works. He would act, it was said, in an advisory capacity to the Secretary of the Interior in the work of completing reclamation projects under the provisions of the act of June 25 last, authorizing the issuance of $20,000,000 of certificates of indebtedness for that purpose.

The creation of the new position was in accordance with the wishes of the President and was in harmony with what was stated by the plan of inspection by army engineers of existing reclamation projects, as provided by the law. That act provides for the appointment of a board of five engineers to be designated from the engineer corps of the army to inspect the reclamation works, reporting directly to the President. Mr. Taft has the appointment of this board now under consideration. The board will serve in an advisory capacity to the President, while General Marshall will occupy a similar relation to the Secretary of the Interior. Director Newell, of the reclamation service, in response to a question to-day, said he thought the appointment of General Marshall was a good thing, and believed it would expedite the work. General Marshall, who in his new position will receive a salary of $7,500 yearly, was placed on the retired list of the army on June 11 last after a distinguished career as an engineer.

CONVENTION HELD ON OCEAN STEAMER

Tobacco Men Transact Business While Sea Breezes Cool Them.

CARRINGTON RE-ELECTED

Government Asked to Send Experts to Test Various Soils.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
New York, July 2.—For the second time in its history the United States Tobacco Association held its annual convention at sea, chartering the Old Dominion liner Jamestown, which arrived to-day from Norfolk. There were two reasons for having the convention on a coastwise steamship bound this way. One was to transact all the business in the coolness of the ocean breezes, and the other to get to New York and see things, including the Hudson, Coney Island and other near-by summer breathing and drinking spots, and the great old city itself from the sight-seeing automobiles and otherwise.

It was the association's tenth convention. The members, after landing, declared that it was just as hot here as in old Virginia, and maybe even a little hotter. On the way up the members discussed the future of tobacco growing in the South, particularly in Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina. President T. M. Carrington, who was re-elected, recommended in his report that the farmers should be urged not to overproduce the leaf, but rather to curtail its production. Low prices, he said, were due chiefly to over-production.

To Test Soils.
Resolutions were adopted asking the United States government to send experts into North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia to test the various soils there and to make a report as to the best means of improving their overproduction.

productiveness. Much of the soil, the report said, had run out, and it was necessary to know what sort of fertilizer should be used to redeem it. The farmers had used the same kind of fertilizer for years, and it is the impression of the association that if they got the benefit of the scientific knowledge of the experts of the Agricultural Department they might be able to infuse new life into the soil with the right kind of fertilizer.

Besides President Carrington, these officers were elected: Vice-President, W. L. Petty; Second Vice-President, T. E. Roberts; Third Vice-President, A. P. Watson; chairman of the board of governors, W. T. Read. The secretary and treasurer will not be elected until the return of the members to the South. They will make the Imperial Hotel their headquarters.

RIVAL CANDIDATES IN STREET FIGHT

Charges of Fraud in Bedford City Election Lead to Encounter.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Bedford City, Va., July 2.—This morning, a little after 9 o'clock, a personal difficulty occurred in front of the courthouse between Paul Bargamin, the present Mayor of Bedford City, and Nelson Sale, who is now candidate for the office of Mayor in the election for the position, when the vote resulted in a tie. The commissioners of election decided the matter by lot in favor of Mr. Bargamin, the incumbent.

Mr. Sale, in filing his notice to contest the election, claimed that three-fourths of the votes had been cast for him had been counted for Mr. Bargamin, and he requested the court to require a new count. The paper was signed by seventeen voters.

It seems that one or two of the signers had not understood that the paper they signed was in the nature of a contest of the election, and had filed a paper in the clerk's office to that effect.

Yesterday Mr. Bargamin, by his counsel, James P. Woods, of Roanoke, filed his answer to Mr. Sale's notice of contest, and in doing so, the signers of the paper used the expression: "Said electors signed said complaint through material and fraudulent misrepresentation as to the purity thereof, made to them by said Sale."

When Mr. Sale read this statement he went to Bargamin and asked him if he meant to fight. Thereupon he struck Mr. Bargamin in the face, causing either by the blow or by Mr. Bargamin's foot catching in the concrete curbing. Mr. Sale then struck Bargamin on the head, when they were separated. Mr. Sale has been summoned to appear next Wednesday.

ORPHANAGE WILL GET NEW LOCATION

Executive Committee Authorized to Sell Property in Rivermont.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Lynchburg, Va., July 2.—The board of trustees of the Presbyterian Orphanage here last night authorized the executive committee, if it deemed best to do so, to sell the remainder of the orphanage property in Rivermont, and locate the institution on other property to be purchased in the vicinity of Lynchburg.

The board ratified the sale of about 105 acres of the frontage of the estate to the Peakland Company for $35,000, and this brought up the disposition of the remainder of the farm, which contains about 210 acres of valuable property. The decision was finally reached to dispose of the remainder of the property, if it could be accomplished, and to locate the orphanage elsewhere.

In addition to this, the board instructed the executive committee to take steps at once for the erection of a main central building, a general heating plant, a laundry, a dairy and such cottages as the institution may need.

These buildings are needed as speedily as possible, and this will mean that the executive committee will act at once with the proposition to sell the property in order that a new location may be secured, and the necessary buildings be provided before winter.

The board elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, George E. Caskie; Secretary, Rev. J. A. McMurtry; Superintendent and Treasurer, Dr. R. S. Fleming.

The by-laws were amended to permit the employment of help at the orphanage in the future upon the recommendation of the superintendent to the executive committee, instead of to the entire board.

MIX PLAY AND WORK AT SUMMER SCHOOL

Splendid Results Being Accomplished at Charlottesville—Nearly 1,200 Students Registered. Fine Faculty Secured.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
University of Virginia, July 2.—Those two young men yonder are coming from under the rotunda and they are carrying a May pole with bright yellow, pink and green ribbons on it. And there comes a line of pretty young women singing and dancing, and yonder comes another line. My! but are they not pretty. How they take ribbons and dance and sing merrily this way and that. A large crowd sits on the steps of the rotunda and some are under the trees, looking on with mingled admiration and desire. Who are they? Why, they are our young teachers come up to the noble old university where they may learn more and better things for the Commonwealth. They have been very busy all the long summer day, and are now having a genuinely good time. On another evening they sing and play on the lawn at another place. Another evening they sit in rows on the north rotunda steps, while a lady in simple style with highest art tells three pretty stories. Everybody is getting ready for the grand Fourth of July pageant, when counties and States will compete with each other in showing the glories of local history. It will be highly educational and most beautiful to see. Thus and otherwise the social life of the great Summer School is kept full and energetic and delightful. The other night we had a most illuminating address with stereopticon from Dr. Hammer, one of the experts on children's playgrounds. And there is regular instruction in plays and games with careful drills and exercises. We are just beginning in Virginia to realize the tremendous value of play in producing and maintaining health and character as well.

In Full Action.
The Summer School is in full action. Evidently it has been admirably planned and worked up by Dr. Payne, for there are people here from every direction. It may be doubted whether anywhere can be found a more efficient administrator of this kind of work than our Dr. Payne. He is giving this evidence of the new purpose and power of the university to serve the people.

All sorts of courses of study and training are offered. Thirty subjects are divided into some 119 courses, taught by experts from the university and from elsewhere. One can study New Testament, Greek or the art of making good bread. One may join a gang that follows Dr. Lambeth in search of flowers and plants or go bird studying at 6 o'clock in the morning if one can get up in time.

The teachers tell you that it is a joy to teach these teacher-pupils, because of their earnestness and industry. Real work is being done, the genuine kind of work, for which our university stands foremost. Far and away the most important thing in progress now in the State is this school. Its work will tell powerfully from Shenandoah to Norfolk and from Accomac to Washington.

There are up to date 1,183 students registered. Last year during the whole session there were 1,144. The following are here from Richmond and Henrico county. Of course, our Dr. Chandler is here teaching, learning planning:

IS 106 YEARS OLD
"Don't Worry" Is Zeitlin's Only Recipe for Longevity.
New York, July 2.—One hundred and six years old to-day, Joseph Zeitlin took time to tell congratulatory friends that he had no secrets for longevity.

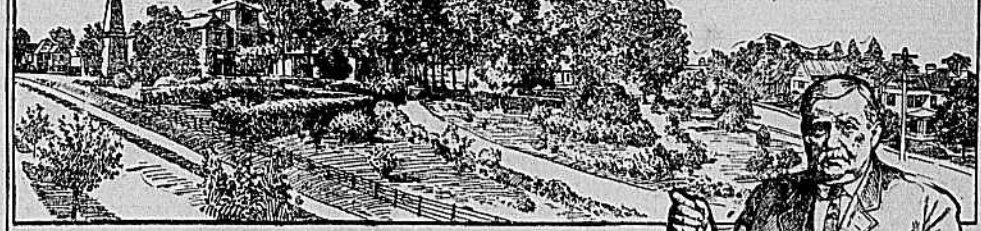

"I don't let anything worry me," he said, "for it makes one old. What I say is 'if you want to eat, eat; and if you want to drink, drink.'"

Zeitlin has been in this country a quarter of a century, but has learned only two English sentences: "How do you do?" and "Get out of here!"

Have You An Employee Who Drinks?
A brilliant man perhaps who was once your most trusted employee? Maybe he is still all right—as brilliant as ever—when he is sober. But you can't keep him in the same responsible position because you never can trust him any more. And so you have to cut his wages and finally when all patience is exhausted and all hope seems gone—you have to discharge him and set him adrift.

Too good to be true you say! Not a bit of it. We have cured 6500 patients here at the Greensboro Keeley Institute the past eighteen years since I've been president of it and the great majority of them are happy and prosperous men today. We can do just as much for your old employee. For his sake, for his family's sake, for your own sake, write today for our descriptive booklet.

THE COCA-COLA COMPANY,
Atlanta, Ga.

Gentlemen: The hardest thing a ball player has to contend with is thirst, because if you try to satisfy it with water, you either get loggy or lose your "Ginger" or it makes you sick, while alcoholic beverages are fatal to good ball. I drink because I find that a single glass quenches the thirst, refreshes me and relieves fatigue without any after "let down." Therefore a splendid beverage for keeping condition. I cheerfully recommend it to all athletes.

Very truly yours,
